National Service in the District of Columbia

MEETING COMMUNITY NEEDS IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

More than 3,600 people of all ages and backgrounds are helping to meet local needs, strengthen communities, and increase civic engagement through national service in the District of Columbia. Serving at more than 370 locations throughout the state, these citizens tutor and mentor children, support veterans and military families, provide health services, restore the environment, respond to disasters, increase economic opportunity, and recruit and manage volunteers.

This year, the Corporation for National and Community Service (CNCS) will commit more than $31,800,000 to support District of Columbia communities through national service initiatives. CNCS invests in cost-effective community solutions--working hand in hand with local partners to improve lives, expand economic opportunity, and engage citizens in solving problems in their communities. Serving in many of the state's most impoverished communities, CNCS provides vital support to schools, food banks, homeless shelters, community health clinics, youth centers, veterans service facilities, and other nonprofit and faith-based organizations at a time of growing demand for services. Through a unique public-private partnership, this federal investment will leverage an additional $26,640,000 in other resources to strengthen community impact, build local support, and increase return on taxpayer dollars. Nationwide, CNCS, its grantees, and project sponsors generated more than $1.25 billion in outside resources from businesses, foundations, public agencies, and other sources in FY 2015.

AmeriCorps: This year AmeriCorps will provide more than 2,000 individuals the opportunity to provide intensive, results-driven service to meet education, environmental, health, economic, and other pressing needs in communities across the District of Columbia. Most AmeriCorps grant funding goes to the Serve DC, which in turn awards grants to nonprofit groups to respond to local needs. Most of the remainder of the grant funding is distributed by CNCS directly to multi-state and national organizations through a competitive grants process. Other individuals serve through AmeriCorps VISTA, whose members help bring individuals and communities out of poverty by serving full-time to fight illiteracy, improve health services, create businesses, and increase housing opportunities, and AmeriCorps NCCC (National Civilian Community Corps), a 10-month, full time residential program for men and women between the ages of 18 and 24. In exchange for their service, AmeriCorps members earn an education award that can be used to pay for college or to pay back qualified student loans. Since 1994, more than 5,800 District of Columbia residents have served more than 8.3 million hours and have qualified for Segal AmeriCorps Education Awards totaling more than $19,010,000.

Senior Corps: More than 1,600 seniors in the District of Columbia contribute their time and talents in one of three Senior Corps programs. Foster Grandparents serve one-on-one as tutors and mentors to more than 20,000 young people who have special needs. Senior Companions help more than 72 homebound seniors and other adults maintain independence in their own homes. RSVP volunteers conduct safety patrols, renovate homes, protect the environment, tutor and mentor youth, respond to natural disasters, and provide other services through more than 41 groups across the District of Columbia.

Social Innovation Fund: The Social Innovation Fund transforms lives and communities using limited federal investment as a catalyst to grow the impact of nonprofits with evidence of strong results. It harnesses the expertise of grantmaking intermediaries to identify, evaluate and expand effective nonprofits and engages funding partners to contribute nearly three dollars to every one federal dollar invested. As the Social Innovation Fund network grows programs that work in the District of Columbia, more people are able to overcome their most pressing challenges in the areas of economic opportunity, health, and youth development. The Social Innovation Fund is investing more than $9,600,000 in expanding the impact of 10 nonprofits in the District of Columbia, selected and supported by 7 intermediaries.

The Corporation for National and Community Service is a federal agency that improves lives, strengthens communities, and fosters civic engagement through service and volunteering. CNCS annually engages more than five million Americans in service to meet local needs through Senior Corps, AmeriCorps, and national days of service; improves communities through the Social Innovation Fund, and leads President Obama's national call to service initiative, United We Serve. [1] This figure represents the number of awarded positions available to be filled in the 2015 - 2016 program year. For AmeriCorps VISTA, this represents the actual number of VISTA members in active service.

[2] This figure represents the maximum potential value of Segal AmeriCorps Education Awards that can be earned by AmeriCorps members serving in District of Columbia. The award can be used in any state to pay for college, graduate school, vocational training, or to pay back student loans. The education award total is included in total CNCS funding.

[3] AmeriCorps National figures may include national programs headquartered in the state and/or operating sites of national programs that are headquartered in other states. Funding reflects the estimated proportionate share of the national grant associated with operating sites in this report. Some national organizations do not report operating site data, or it was not available at time of publishing, so figures may not reflect current conditions.

[4] District of Columbia is served by the AmeriCorps NCCC campus located in Dundalk, Maryland.
 In the past year, AmeriCorps NCCC teams have served on projects in Washington.

[5] The service location total may contain multiple counts of unique locations where multiple CNCS programs are operating.

[6] As part of its public-private partnership approach, CNCS requires grantees to leverage additional resources to strengthen community impact and increase the return on the federal investment. This figure reflects non-CNCS cash and in-kind resources that CNCS grantees and project sponsors have committed to raise or other revenue used to support their programming activities across the state. Last year, CNCS, its grantees, and project sponsors generated more than $1.25 billion in outside resources from businesses, foundations, public agencies, and other sources.

Since 1994, more than 5,800 District of Columbia residents have served more than 8.3 million hours and have qualified for Segal AmeriCorps Education Awards totaling more than $19,010,000.

National Service Impact in the District of Columbia

State Commission

Serve DC has strong partnerships with 14 AmeriCorps subgrantees in the CNCS impact areas of education, economic development, healthy futures and environmental stewardship. These 14 programs support 534 AmeriCorps members in the community who recruited, trained and supported 3,925 volunteers last year. Among other accomplishments, AmeriCorps members serving in Higher Achievement's Afterschool Academy helped 61 percent of students improve in math and 59 percent in reading. Byte Back AmeriCorps members helped 16 economically disadvantaged individuals get jobs after they completed and passed certification class and assessment. Playworks' 11 AmeriCorps members worked with 4,093 children in 10 low-income elementary schools with in-school and out-of-school programming. Jumpstart AmeriCorps members helped 137 children increase literacy skills from the fall to spring semester.

AmeriCorps State

The Latin America Youth Center (LAYC) located in Washington, DC serves high needs middle and high schools in the focus areas of education and healthy futures. Eleven AmeriCorps members provide academic assistance after school and in classroom. Last year, 158 students participated in LAYC's after school programs. The participants had an average attendance rate of 79 percent, a homework completion rate of 96 percent, and received and average 74.6 of hours of academic support per student. AmeriCorps members also provide in classroom health instruction and facilitate health-related events and projects. Using Evidenced Based Curriculum "Sex Can Wait" and "Making Proud Choices," LAYC's Stages of Life program served 237 students. Of those 213 students, or 89 percent showed improvement on their post-test scores.

Reading Partners has programs in 12 Washington, DC Public Schools. Reading Partners AmeriCorps members implement an evidence-based model that improves children's reading skills and has 16 AmeriCorps members who serve as site coordinators. The members provide in-person coaching to volunteers and develop tutor training sessions for the volunteers in order to prepare them to assist students who are reading one month to two-and-a-half years below grade level. During the 2014-2015 school year, Reading Partners DC exceeded all of their outcome and output measures. Forty-two more students enrolled in the Reading Partners programs than anticipated for a total of 700 students. Of these students, 654 completed the program by receiving at least 16 hours of tutoring, exceeding the completion rate target by 41 percent. AmeriCorps members administer mid-year and end-year assessments. By the end of the fourth quarter, 431 students gained at least one month of literacy skills for every month in the program, exceeding the target of the third performance measure by 44 percent.

AmeriCorps National

Washington, DC has one of highest rates of new HIV infections per capita in the nation. To address the HIV epidemic in the DC community, for the past 20 years AIDS United AmeriCorps members have been providing vital services. Each year, 12 full-time AmeriCorps members provide direct services, including HIV testing and counseling, health care access, prevention outreach, prevention education, and emotional and social services to at-risk populations. During that time, AIDS United AmeriCorps members have informed almost 20,000 people of their HIV status through HIV rapid testing, provided quality of life and health care access services to almost 15,000 people, reached more than 60,000 people through prevention education and outreach, and mobilized more than 6,000 volunteers.

City Year Washington, DC AmeriCorps has 169 members who serve full-time at 16 schools, helping more than 5,850 students at greatest risk of dropping out. City Year AmeriCorps members work alongside teachers, using research-based tools to improve students' attendance, behavior, and performance in math and English. The members also lead afterschool programs and school-wide initiatives to improve school culture. Thanks to the members' service, 70 percent of 6th through 9th graders stayed on track or improved their English grade during the school year, 95 percent of kindergartners through 5th graders who were tutored improved their literacy scores, and 96 percent of teachers and principals agree that AmeriCorps members helped boost attendance.

FoodCorps has 13 AmeriCorps members serving in Washington, DC. FoodCorps is a nationwide team of AmeriCorps leaders who work under the direction of local partner organizations to connect children to real food and help them grow up healthy. They teach children hands-on lessons about food and nutrition build and tend school gardens, teach cooking lessons, and help change what's on lunch trays so that children can eat healthy food from local farms. In the past year, the FoodCorps members in Washington, DC served 7,477 children, built or brought back into use 17 school and community gardens, harvested 1,839 pounds of produce, and recruited 828 community volunteers.

AmeriCorps VISTA

The See Forever Foundation's Maya Angelou Public Charter Schools (MAPCS) involves four AmeriCorps VISTA members in data analysis, project resources development, student engagement, and curriculum design. The VISTAs also develop and strengthen volunteer and mentoring program opportunities. The Foundation designs learning communities in low-income urban areas, where all students, particularly those who have not succeeded in traditional schools, can reach their potential and prepare for college, careers, and a lifetime of success. At the MAPCS High School, located in an underserved area east of the Anacostia River, the learning community program is experiencing great success, as 73 percent of its graduates enroll in college, compared with about 50 percent of high school graduates among African-Americans in local, low-income communities.

Higher Achievement's rigorous afterschool and summer academic program closes the opportunity gap for middle school youth in under-resourced communities. The program's proven model provides a demanding year-round learning environment, caring role models, and a culture of high expectations, resulting in college-bound scholars with the character, confidence, and skills to succeed. On average, 95 percent of scholars who complete Higher Achievement advance to top academic high school programs and 93 percent advance to college. With the support of AmeriCorps VISTA in the areas of program quality and evaluation, core research model development, volunteer/ mentor recruitment and alumni support; by 2016, Higher Achievement aims to serve 70 percent more students directly and impact more than 7,000 students in Washington, DC, Pittsburgh, PA, Richmond and Alexandria, VA.

AmeriCorps NCCC

In partnership with the District of Columbia Public Schools, an AmeriCorps NCCC team worked with students in the Summer Extended School Year Program. NCCC members helped close out schools for the summer and to open the new River Terrace Education Campus. The team cleared out two schools, Mamie D. Lee School and Sharpe Health School, by packing up materials and cleaning furniture. NCCC members inventoried supplies and packaged over 150 supply kits. The team also provided support for qualified students with disabilities at risk for significant academic regression over the summer. AmeriCorps members facilitated arrival/dismissal, provided one-on-one tutoring, entered data, and set up and closed down the program at four of the eleven sites. The team also worked with four different after-care programs that focused on a variety of goals including STEM education, empowerment, and literacy. The NCCC team's support enabled more one on one learning environments so that each student received the individualized attention necessary for success.

A FEMA Corps team developed a curriculum and schedule for a 12-week training for Pilot Academy students. NCCC members engaged in inventory, accountability, deployments, ordering of supplies, spreadsheets, and IT assistance. Working with the students has helped FEMA Corps members learn FEMA procedures and protocol. It also broadened their understanding of service and why the initial response to disaster is so critical to a fast recovery.

Senior Corps Foster Grandparent Program

The United Planning Organization's Foster Grandparent Program has more than 200 Foster Grandparents serving in various types of educational institutions across the District of Columbia. From pre-school to Job Corps, District area seniors are making a difference in young people's lives, helping them achieve academic goals. The accomplishments of the DC Foster Grandparent Program have been highlighted in segments on CNN and Rock Center with Brian Williams, as well as in recent articles in the Washington Post. Currently, the work of 75 Foster Grandparents placed in regular and special education classrooms in Title I elementary schools like Plummer, Miner, and Malcom X, has helped increase the academic achievement of 85 percent of the students they work with, according to their teachers.

Senior Corps RSVP

The Washington, DC RSVP program is administered though the nonprofit Family Matters of Greater Washington. More than 150 volunteers serve in various capacities around the city. From working with veterans, to assisting low income students with literacy; residents over the age of 55 are making an impact in key areas like education and aging in place. Recently, RSVP in collaboration with the AARP Foundation launched an innovative program called Connecting to Communities where low-income seniors build connections and technology skills in a peer-to-peer setting. Since its inception, senior volunteers have trained more than 100 low income senior residents in the use the Internet, email, social media, and common computer applications that would further their connections to information and other groups of people with similar interests. After successful participation in the program, all participants receive an iPad and in-home Internet service to help them stay connected.

Senior Corps Senior Companion Program

The Washington, DC Senior Companion Program is administered by the University of the District of Columbia's Institute of Gerontology. The program recruits and trains senior volunteers 55 years and older to serve other residents in their homes or at group facilities such as senior housing buildings and senior centers. These dedicated volunteers assist ill and home-bound elderly persons with errands, light housekeeping, meal preparation, and many other activities that allow them to remain in their home, stay connected with others, and age with dignity. For example, the VA Medical Center is a DC facility that houses veterans with various illnesses and diseases connected to their tours of duty. Many of these veterans do not have friends or family members in the area. Currently, 33 Senior Companions support 107 veterans at the VA Medical Center.

Social Innovation Fund

The Social Innovation Fund is investing $762,500 to expand the impact of 10 nonprofits in the District of Columbia. Social Innovation Fund programs focus primarily on college preparation, workforce development, and healthy living. Positive Pathways, a program of the Washington AIDS Partnership, has provided access to care services and linked almost 1,100 individuals to HIV medical care. Through the KIPP Through College innovation program, 87 percent of KIPP alumni went on to their second year of postsecondary education, exceeding their goal of 85 percent. In the Urban Alliance program 98 percent of the interns graduated on time and 97 percent were accepted into a postsecondary program.

Volunteer Generation Fund

Serve DC's Volunteer Generation Fund initiative is designed to support nonprofit organizations that work with boys and young men of color in the District of Columbia in the areas of education, healthy futures, and economic opportunity. In partnership with the Taproot Foundation, the Serve DC My Brother's Keeper Volunteer Generation project uses pro bono volunteers to help improve the organizational capacity of nonprofits working in the aforementioned areas. Five nonprofit partners received grants for capacity building and intensive training from a proven volunteer management curriculum. Each project included a team of 5 Pro Bono Consultants who have donated 100 hours of service each. The impact of those hours can be seen in the number of volunteers that service grant recipients were able to recruit. For example, DC Greens, a fresh food initiative in intercity food deserts, was able to recruit 150 volunteers to staff their farmers' market; and DC Scores was able to recruit 350 volunteers to participate as coaches, referees, or summer camp volunteers to provide structured soccer activities to at risk youth throughout the school year and summer.

Washington, DC	AIDS United	AIDS United's Access to Care Initiative (A2C) aims to increase the number of HIV positive individuals receiving care. The SIF grant to AIDS United supports 12 innovative partnerships – collaborations of nonprofits, researchers and others – that are improving individual health outcomes and strengthening local services systems. In total, it will connect at least 6,146 low-income and marginalized individuals with HIV to high quality health care and the supportive services they need. In conjunction with this SIF grant program, AIDS United has partnered with researchers at Johns Hopkins' Bloomberg School of Public Health to conduct rigorous evaluations of its initiatives. Findings are expected to inform federal policy, including existing federal funding for HIV/AIDS prevention and treatment, and the implementation of the White House Office of National AIDS Policy's recent National HIV/AIDS Strategy. Lessons from the evaluations will also inform efforts to increase access to care among individuals with other chronic diseases.

Washington, DC	Local Initiatives Support Corporation (2010)	The Local Initiatives Support Corporation (LISC) is expanding by six cities and by 75% (from approximately 4,000 to 7,500) the number of individuals and families served by an innovative workforce development and asset building model called Financial Opportunity Centers (FOCs). The FOC model focuses on improving the financial bottom line for low-to-moderate income families by helping people boost earnings, reduce expenses, and make appropriate financial decisions. A rigorous evaluation design to be conducted at Chicago FOC sites, and additional analysis of other expansion sites, will provide greater evidence about the model's impact on employment, earnings and savings. The studies, to be conducted by the Economic Mobility Corporation, have been designed to inform workforce policy more broadly.

Washington, DC	Share Our Strength	Since its launch in 2010, the No Kid Hungry campaign has changed lives in communities across the country. By working with the most effective partners, we are able to put our resources behind efforts that work to reach more children. In September 2014, Share Our Strength was awarded a five-year Social Innovation Fund grant, further validating the No Kid Hungry strategy, its scalability, and its potential to create transformational change. With this grant, six of the highest potential performing organizations were awarded grants totaling $1.85 million in the first year. This significant investment in scaling our program is moving us further, faster across the nation. Through the work of these new No Kid Hungry Communities, we are setting out to reach nearly 2 million children from low-income families. Surrounding kids with healthy meals is achievable in every corner of this country — from urban Seattle, to suburban parts of Michigan, to deep in the Heart of Texas.

Washington, DC	US Soccer Foundation	The US Soccer Foundation (USSF) will support the expansion and replication of Soccer for Success (SfS), a no-cost, after-school, sports-based youth development program whose goal is to improve health by arresting and reducing obesity through physical activity and nutrition education. Subgrantees are located in urban areas and participate in sophisticated data collection documenting effects on participants' body mass index (BMI) and physical fitness. The USSFF will administer SIF grant awards and provide oversight and technical assistance to its subgrantees, which will implement and conduct Soccer for Success (SfS) programs, the USSFF's signature anti-obesity effort, for five years. SfS uses a group mentoring model in a sports-based environment to encourage physical activity with an infusion of nutrition, health education, and healthy lifestyles. SfS's goal of improving participants' health will be followed using quantitative indicators for the following measurable outcomes: reduction in body mass index (BMI), increase in nutrition knowledge, and increase in fitness levels. Rigorous data collection and evaluation will support preliminary evidence and demonstrate that Soccer for Success (SfS) is an economical, scalable, and evidence-based program to arrest, prevent, and reduce obesity, a national health crisis of staggering proportions.

Washington, DC	Washington AIDS Partnership AIDS United	Positive Pathways is a program in the District of Columbia that assists HIV-positive African Americans living in Wards 5-8 to participate with HIV medical care and supportive safety net services, with a particular focus on HIV-positive women and their partners. Led by Washington AIDS Partnership, Positive Pathways is a collaboration between eight community partners and the DC Department of Health. Through a network of 12 trained peer Community Health Workers (CHWs) placed in community and primary care settings, Positive Pathways works to support program participants to take full advantage of HIV medical care and other community services to improve their health and quality of life. CHWs work at their employing organizations and in the community to identify individuals who are HIV-positive and not receiving HIV medical care in order to build trust and inform them about living with HIV, to provide personalized assistance to help them enter medical care, and to support them throughout the early part of their care until they are fully involved. Peers utilize their unique position to address barriers to care that can present challenges for other medical professionals. These CHWs provide trust-based information and education; help clients overcome fear, denial and stigma; conduct outreach and support deep in the community; take the time to walk clients through the often overwhelming healthcare system; and help clients strategize to manage the logistics of caring for oneself in the context of a complicated life.

Washington, DC	DC Water Harvard Kennedy School Social Impact Bond Lab	The SIB Lab will work with the District of Columbia Water and Sewer Authority (DC Water) to explore the use of Pay for Success (PFS) models to develop "green" infrastructure storm water solutions designed to improve water quality, mitigate the impacts of climate change, and promote environmental, socio-economic and health benefits.DC Water is pursuing the PFS model as a potential framework for financing a pilot Green Infrastructure Project (GI Project) that is designed to reduce the scope, scale and cost of the mandated grey infrastructure tunnel system, alleviate ratepayer burden, and produce measurable outcomes for communities within the District.Specifically, the SIB Lab will be using available data and evidence to conduct a feasibility analysis of the proposed GI Project using the PFS model. The feasibility analysis would focus on five main aspects of the PFS transaction: (1) assessing whether the proposed interventions produce the desired outcomes; (2) confirming that the likely outcomes satisfy cost-benefit principles; (3) developing an efficient and effective payment structure within a PFS model; (4) insuring that there are adequate service providers that can deliver the desired outcomes; and (5) establishing rigorous evaluation criteria and metrics to measure the initiative's outcomes.
